

Professor Michael Wong

Assistant Professor
HKU Business School
The University of Hong Kong

Biography

Professor Wong is an Assistant Professor in Economics and Management Strategy at the HKU Business School. He received a PhD in Economics from MIT and an AB in Physics from Harvard University.

His research interests include labour, organizational, housing, and monetary economics. His current focus is on the economics of barter and digital money, the global rise of labour service outsourcing, and the housing crisis in Hong Kong. In addition to his research endeavours, Professor Wong is actively involved in teaching courses such as Global Management in Economics Perspective and Economics of Organization and Strategy.