

Professor Chenkai Wu
Assistant Professor of Global Health
Duke Kunshan University

Biography

Chenkai Wu is an Assistant Professor of Global Health at Duke Kunshan University. He graduated from Zhejiang University with a B.S. in Psychology and a Ph.D. in Epidemiology from Oregon State University. His research centres on (1) measurement, epidemiology, and clinical implications of frailty, (2) promotion of healthy aging and longevity, and (3) implications of machine learning and big data in clinical practice. He has published over 100 peer-reviewed papers and led or participated in over 20 research projects. He serves as Associate Editor for the Journal of Gerontology: Medical Sciences and as a board member for five additional academic journals.