

Professor Yeqiao Wang
Professor
Department of Natural Resources Science
The University of Rhode Island

Professor Yeqiao Wang is a professor at the Department of Natural Resources Science, The University of Rhode Island. He received his Ph.D. and M.S. degrees in natural resources management and engineering from University of Connecticut in 1992 and 1995, respectively. He was on the faculty of University of Illinois at Chicago between 1995 and 1999. His research interests include land change science, in particular in coastal and mountainous regions, protected natural preserves and conservation areas. His study areas include various regions in the United States, in East and West Africa, and in China. Among his awards and recognitions, he is a recipient of the prestigious Presidential Early Career Award for Scientists and Engineers bestowed by the Former U.S. President William Jefferson Clinton. He is the inaugural Editor-in-Chief of All Earth, which is an open access broad Earth sciences journal covering topics on all spherical perspectives of our home planet.