Biography

Professor Edmond Choi is an Associate Professor at the School of Nursing, The University of Hong Kong. While his primary research focuses on sexual health, his research portfolio also encompasses psycho-social well-being and health-related quality of life. Motivated by the recent migration trends of Hong Kongers, he has expanded his work to explore the psychosocial well-being of the Hong Kong diaspora, with a particular focus on understanding the contextual factors associated with their mental and emotional health.

Professor Choi has an impressive publication record, with over 135 articles published in international peer-reviewed journals. The field-weighted citation impact (FWCI) of his first-author papers (2020–2025) is 4.04, indicating that his work is cited 304% above the world average. He has been recognized as one of the top 2% of the world’s most cited scientists by Stanford University in 2021, 2022, and 2023.
