Professor Dr Tenzin Wangmo
Institute for Biomedical Ethics
University of Basel

Tenzin Wangmo works at the Institute for Biomedical Ethics at the University of Basel. She obtained her PhD in Gerontology from the Graduate Center for Gerontology, University of Kentucky (USA) and has a BA in Biology from Berea College, KY (USA). Her research expertise in ethics include access to health, well-being of older adults, health of older persons in prisons, technology and aging, caring for older persons, and empirical research methodology. She has published more than 150 peer-reviewed manuscripts in the field of bioethics, medicine, and gerontology. She is the vice-president of the International Association of Bioethics and board member of European Association of Centers of Medical Ethics.