

Can Xu
PhD Candidate
Department of Social Welfare and Risk Management
School of Public Affairs
Zhejiang University

Can Xu is a PhD candidate at the Department of Social Welfare and Risk Management, School of Public Affairs, Zhejiang University. Her research interests lie at the intersection of social inequality, social policy, and human capital formation. Her work examines how family, education, and policy environments shape children's developmental trajectories and contribute to the reproduction or reduction of social inequality.